ABOUT T4CG

---

Together for the Common Good (T4CG) was registered as a charity in March 2017.

We see a society in the UK today that has deep fault lines and is more polarised and fragmented than it has been for many years. Our mission is to help people across the churches play their part to strengthen the bonds of social trust.

Our work involves calling people to fulfil their unique vocational responsibility by putting Gospel-centred Common Good principles into practice and by working with others of different opinions and backgrounds in shared purpose to build up civil society.

We do this through training resources (for clergy, lay people and schools), public conversations, online and printed materials, talks and sessions. Relationship building is at the heart of how we work. We partner with people and organisations across the churches, and with allies from fellow faith and non-religious traditions. We work across the UK and have some interest from overseas.

Our small team punches above its weight thanks to an unusually high level of pro bono assistance in the form of volunteers, associates and working groups.

We're proud to draw from our shared experience across the Christian traditions, in particular Catholic Social Teaching, which helps us seed and support Common Good practice in all communities.

Our inspiration is rooted in the ground-breaking partnership between church leaders in Liverpool a generation ago. At a time of division and instability, they set aside their differences and worked together for the good of the city. Responding to God's call to build relationships, and in solidarity with communities, they bridged divides and played a key role in the renewal of civic wellbeing.

T4CG is an equal opportunities employer.
